Magnetic Level Gauges Series

Suitable Applications

Magnetic level gauges are best suited for operating conditions requiring high safety, clear long-distance visibility, and handling of high-pressure, highly toxic, flammable, or explosive substances:

Flammable, explosive, and toxic/hazardous media

High-temperature and high-pressure conditions

Highly corrosive media

Liquid-liquid interface measurement (interface level gauges)

Outdoor and harsh environments (passive visual indication)

Unsuitable Applications

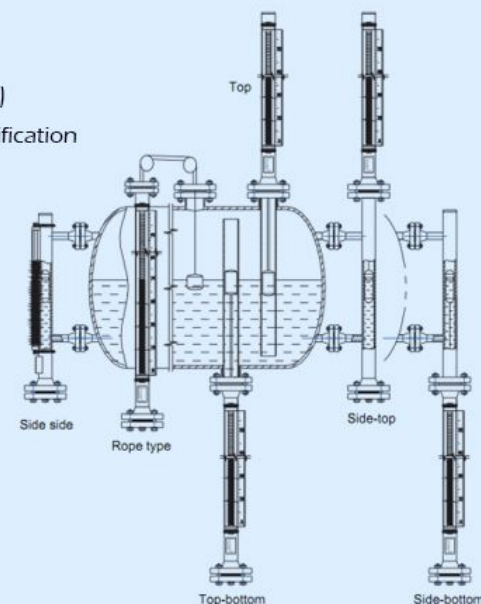

Media containing ferromagnetic impurities (strictly prohibited)

High-viscosity media or media prone to crystallization or solidification

Ultra-low-density media

Areas with strong external magnetic field interference

Custody transfer requiring extremely high precision
